Opening Note

“Please hold your comments and questions until the end.”

This year you have been really helpful to me when you:

- _____
- _____

I think I am doing really well on:

- _____
- _____

I sometimes still struggle with:

- _____
- _____

At home you could help me reach my goals even more by:

- helping me to devise and stick to a daily homework schedule.
- encouraging me to work in a quiet area so I don't get distracted.
- encouraging me to work at the table or wherever you are so you can give me assistance when I need it.
- encouraging me to have friends over to do homework together.
- limiting my TV time, even when I protest.
- limiting my computer time, even when I protest.
- helping to protect my homework time by taking a phone message when people call me or remind me to turn off my phone.
- asking to see my planner to make sure I have assignments written.
- asking to see my completed homework to check it for quality & completion.
- getting on the team web site with me or calling the homework hotline with me to see what I need to do if I've missed school.
- reading some of the material in the text books aloud to me.
- quizzing me on vocabulary and concepts as I study for tests.
- praising me for getting my homework done on time.
- making privileges contingent on getting all my work done.
- planning fun family activities together to celebrate my successes in school, great and small.
- insisting that I go to bed earlier to get adequate rest so I can do my best.
